

Amy grew up in North Yorkshire. Learning the piano and flute at a young age, she performed at every opportunity, in bands, choirs, dance recitals and school productions, including performing at Barnsley Music and Drama festival on both the flute and piano, leading to her gaining a place on the Actor Musicianship course at London College of Music.

During her training at London College of Music, Amy added to her skill set in singing, dancing, and acting and even added more instruments to her repertoire, adding the alto saxophone, classical guitar, clarinet, and bass guitar!

She performed in musicals, new writing and theatre for young audiences and had the opportunity to play in the pit band for many shows, including Pippin, Legally Blonde and Merrily We Roll Along, turning her into a versatile quadruple threat!

Aside from teaching Amy loves long walks with her Schnoodle dog, Skye and reading lots of books. She is super excited to be teaching at The Music Rooms and can't wait to meet so many talented musicians.
