

Lewis Buchan, initiated into music at age 8, pursued classical piano at The Royal conservatoire of Scotland after spending 5 years in their junior department. Skilled in Piano, a second study saxophonist, with a deep foundation in music theory, Lewis' repertoire spans from classical to rock and pop, with a significant inclination towards Jazz.

With a decade long career, Lewis extensively taught Piano to students ages 4-75, seamlessly blending his vast knowledge with a personable teaching approach (he is a very likeable character!).

Earlier in his career, he was a musical director for youth theatre and crafted music for choirs and special events, like weddings.

Lewis has performed as a soloist at the Glasgow Royal Concert Hall and more recently ventured into the international cruise sector as a musical director, overseeing guest acts (such as X-Factor winners) and band performances.

Throughout Lewis Buchan's music journey exhibits a profound dedication to his craft and excellence in teaching.
